

Journal of the Royal Australian Historical Society

Complete
article listing
available online

Part 1: Volumes 1-45, 1901-1960

Part 2: Volumes 46-91, 1960-2005

Adam Matthew Publications

- There is a growing interest in Pacific Studies.
- The study of the social, economic and political history of Australia is also on the rise.
- Many libraries do not possess an historic backfile of JRAHS, which is the most important journal for the study of Australia and its role in the Pacific region.
- The microfilm set is enhanced by a complete article listing online, enabling scholars to search the contents of the journal.

The Royal Australian Historical Society is a voluntary organisation founded in Sydney in 1901 to encourage Australians to understand more about their history. It has a membership throughout Australia and all its activities and facilities are funded by contributions from its members and benefactors.

The Journal of the Royal Australian Historical Society (JRAHS), published twice yearly, is the oldest established journal of Australian history and contains a wide range of scholarly articles and reviews. It is a rich resource for scholars interested in topics such as:

- Exploration of the Pacific
- The First Fleet
- The Foundation of New South Wales
- The growth of Australia as a colony
- Lives of prisoners and explorers
- Economic issues such as the wool industry and mining
- Social history, from the life of a chemist to an account of an opening of the first synagogue in Australia
- Literature and drama
- Images of early Australia - in paintings and photographs
- The development of Australian nationalism
- Immigration

Sample articles from early issues (Part 1) include:

Alfred Lee, 'The Landing of Governor Phillip at Port Jackson' (1901)

J. P. McGuanne, 'The Humours and pastimes of early Sydney' (1901)

James Arthur Dowling, 'An account of Norfolk Island, the first criminal court held there, with a further sketch of the island and its occupants' (1905)

J. H. Watson, 'Port Curtis - evidence of Spanish occupation examined' (1915)

W. H. Tietkens, 'Experiences in the life of an Australian explorer - extracts from the journal (hitherto unpublished) of W. H. Tietkens, F.R.G.S. in which he relates his experiences as explorer, surveyor, etc., mainly in central Australia. Years 1859 to 1887' (1919)

R. J. Black, 'The romance of a pioneer family' (1920)

C. Brunston Fletcher, 'George Brown and the Pacific' (1921)

H. W. Potts, 'The early struggles of the wheat farmers of NSW' (1923)

D. J. Ryan, 'The Discovery and first settlement of Newcastle and genesis of the coal industry' (1923)

Persia C. Campbell, 'Australian nationalism' (1928)

Ward Havard & Olive Havard, 'A Frenchman sees Sydney in 1819 - translated from the letters of Jacques Arago' (1938)

Dora Peyser, 'A Study of the history of welfare work in Sydney from 1788 till about 1900' (1939)

P B Cox, 'Charles Harpur and the early Australian poets 1810-1860' (1939)

Sample articles (Part 2) include:

John M Ward, 'British policy in the exploration of the South Pacific, 1699-1793'(1947)

C E W Bean, 'The English public school - and the Australian' (1950)

Graham Irwin, 'Malaya since the war: impact on Australia' (1957)

John Cobley, 'The Crimes of the First Fleeters' (1966)

Rae Else-Mitchell, 'American influences on Australian nationhood' (1976)

B C Hodge, 'Goldrush Australia' (1983)

Brian H Fletcher, 'National history and national identity in postcolonial Australia' (1997)

Paul Battersby, 'Journeys of an amateur orientalist: Australia and Asia through the eyes of Ambrose Pratt' (2000)

Janice Pavils, 'The emergence of South Australian ANZAC culture 1915-1925' (2003)

Journal of the Royal Australian Historical Society

Part 1: Volumes 1-45, 1901-1960

Part 2: Volumes 46-91, 1960-2005

Governor Lachlan Macquarie (1762-1824)